503/23

SARM Resolution for Water Well Testing

WACK: That the R.M. of Britannia No. 502 council instruct the CAO to present the following resolution to the 2023 SARM Midterm Convention:

Whereas, there is currently no legislative requirements for oil and gas companies to test residential water wells in proximity to oil and gas well drilling sites; and

Whereas, when oil is extracted deep from the earth's surface, it must pass through aquifers closer to ground level and, in most cases, there is a layer of cement around the wells casing to prevent leaking, but sometimes the casing is not always intact, and carcinogens can seep into the water supply, and

Whereas, there are previous instances where personal water wells have been contaminated by compounds that originate from oil and gas wells.

Be it resolved that SARM lobby the Ministry of Energy and Resources to create mandatory regulations for oil and gas companies to test personal water wells within 1.6 kilometres of all proposed oil and gas wells, to determine a base line for the quality of the water well, prior to the oil or gas company drilling the new well.
